How I Used to Create Slides

- Open my company's PowerPoint template
- Make an agenda slide
- For each major concept
  - Make a slide with the list of bullets for each point I wanted to make
  - ~~– I'd then edit words and & phrases to be shorter~~
  - Play with typeface size to get everything to fit
- My slides served as my crutch
- I'd read each point and not miss a thing
